Contact: mvosburgh@ahihealth.org // 518.480.0111, ext. 101

Oversees: AHI's day-to-day management. Held responsible for overall operation of the Corporation in its internal affairs and external relationships. Accountable to the Board of Directors for the effective management of the Corporation.

Margaret M. Vosburgh is chief executive officer of AHI. She provides strategic leadership for the organization, working with the AHI Board of Directors, management team, staff, members, health care providers, community-based organizations and other community partners to establish and successfully implement long-range goals, strategies, plans, and policies. Under her direction, AHI is addressing rapid changes and challenges to the health care system by coordinating, planning, and managing grant-supported programs within nine counties in the Adirondack region of New York State.

Vosburgh has more than 25 years of executive experience, most recently as chief operating officer at Stanford University Medical Center in Palo Alto, California, and executive vice president and chief operating officer at Tufts Medical Center in Boston. She was appointed to her position in May 2016.

Vosburgh holds an MBA from the University of Southern California, a Master of Science degree in Nursing from Russell Sage College, and was awarded a Wharton Fellowship from the University of Pennsylvania. She has published and lectured on topics including high-reliability organizations, organizational design and profitability, employee engagement, and customer satisfaction.
